Frankfurt am Main – Goethe University Frankfurt
LLM Legal Theory (with European Academy of Legal Theory)

The European Academy of Legal Theory offers a one-year Master's Course in Legal Theory. Participants will study at one or more partner universities of the Academy (mobility phases / dual degree tracks). The programme focuses on globalisation and the connected structural transformation of normativity in law. By this process, national law is becoming supra- and international, not least due to the growing influence of transnational law-making on the part of non-state actors.

The programme aims at safeguarding European traditions in a global perspective; developing legal scholarship and jurisprudence as a science; also developing jurisprudence as applied legal theory so as to enable participants in the programme to solve system conflicts which nowadays occur regularly.

Frankfurt am Main – Goethe University Frankfurt
Master of Modern East Asian Studies (MEAS)

The Master of Arts in Modern East Asian Studies (MA MEAS) is a new and innovative programme offered by Goethe University Frankfurt. In a truly interdisciplinary sense, it accommodates students with a Bachelor's degree in economics, law, political science or another social science, and students with a Bachelor's degree in cultural studies related to East Asia.

Students will acquire expert knowledge on East Asia and learn to apply theories and methods from the social sciences to contemporary phenomena in the region. They will also receive intensive language training in selected East Asian languages at beginner and advanced levels.
