JOIN US IN THIS JOURNAL INTERNATIONAL ADVENTURE!

Le Journal International is an online French web magazine, which reports on global issues, whether or not they are present in traditional media. It’s an entirely voluntary structure, with more than 200 voluntary journalists and translators worldwide. Our brand new website (www.lejournalinternational.info) reaches more than 200000 views a month and allows young writers and translators to show their work.

We translate articles about every topic – political, economical, cultural, social, and many more – into English, Spanish, Portuguese, German and Italian. Since our staff comes from all over the world, our articles are written around the globe, allowing us to have readers of every single nationality.

Being a translator at the Journal International is a true experience. That’s why we are currently looking for translators from French into our working languages. It is a fantastic opportunity for you to gain professional experience, improve your languages and enrich your CV.

Your missions will be:

- Translating and/or proofreading the articles
- Publishing your articles into our website
- Contributing to the recruitment of new translators
- Participating in the Journal’s activities

We are looking for someone who:

- Speaks fluently one or more of the Journal’s working languages (besides from French)
- Is strict, punctual, organized and motivated
- Likes teamwork

You will also have to:

- Have internet access
- Be available to translate and/or proofread at least one article a month
- Work along with the rest of the team (translation and edition)

If you are interested in this voluntary adventure, send us your CV and a letter of motivation to: traduction@lejournalinternational.fr. We will do everything to help you integrate into our team as quickly as possible!

Hope to hear from you all!
