

Language Assistant Opportunity

St Michael's Grammar School, Barnet, London

Picture Source: Daily Mirror

This highly successful school is looking for a German language assistant for the period from February-July 2019. Besides teaching groups for German there would be the chance to observe and work in other departments. Students should have a good knowledge of German grammar, to be able to work independently and as a team, to have some teaching experience and be motivated and professional.

What can the school offer? Here is a message from the Head of Modern Languages:

St Michael's is a traditional and highly academic catholic selective school (state grammar school) and we are in the top 10 nationally in GCSE results and top 30 for A level. It is a girls school until the GCSE and mixed at A level but still with a majority of girls at A level. Students are bright, very well behaved and highly curious and motivated. It is close to a tube station but in zone 4. Girls are practicing catholics and absolutely delightful.

If you are looking to develop your teaching experience and extend your knowledge of English then this could be the opportunity for you! The school could support you with finding accommodation and an Erasmus grant would be available.

Candidates should send a CV, letter of motivation and two references to Mrs Veneziano-Osterrath as soon as possible to:

veneziano-osterrath@em.uni-frankfurt.de

I am looking forward to receiving your application!
