The Faculty of Catholic Theology (Fachbereich Katholische Theologie) of the Goethe University of Frankfurt invites applications for the following full time position as civil servant or public employee:

Professorship (W3) in Religious Education and Media Didactics

We are welcoming applications from scholars with special competences in the field of Religious Education and of Media Didactics. The qualified candidate will be able to teach and to conduct research in both areas. Qualified candidates will have a Ph.D. in Catholic Theology and a postdoctoral lecture qualification. Expected qualifications are habilitation or equivalent publications. Required is teaching practice and experience in other practical fields.

Because the professorship is involved in teacher training, candidates are required to have specific experience in this area and should be willing to participate in interdisciplinary initiatives in the field of empirical educational research. Candidates are expected to have three years of practical school-related experience and should be willing to supervise school internships.

The applicant shall participate in all courses of studies offered by the department of Catholic Theology. This contains teaching degree courses as well as BA courses of Catholic Theology and the MA course “Religious Communication: Intercultural and Media Perspectives” The successful candidate will also be involved in teacher-training. Experience in teaching at school and novel ideas regarding the further development of teacher training considering didactic matters of interdenominational learning and conclusion are expected.

The candidate will be involved in the core curriculum and common research focus on “Theologie interkulturell” (intercultural theology) of the department.

The designated salary for the position is based on the German university pay scale or equivalent. Goethe University is committed to increasing the proportion of female faculty and therefore especially encourages women to apply. Applications of scientists from abroad are explicitly requested. Severely disabled applicants with equal qualification and aptitude will be given preferential consideration. For further information regarding the general conditions for professorship appointments, please see: www.vakante-professuren.uni-frankfurt.de Researchers with an excellent record in research and teaching are invited to submit their application accompanied by the usual documents (curriculum vitae, certificates for all degrees completed, records of teaching experience and research, publication list (deadline: 2019-04-04) per email to dekanat07@uni-frankfurt.de.