InfoChat Research Funding

Do you want to start or expand your own group with third party funding? Are you familiar with major funding lines or do you even have first-hand experience acquiring grants, but don’t know where to turn for getting answers for specific questions?

In this workshop, you get to meet RSC’s (Research Service Center, Goethe University) grants consultants who will be working with you during the application phase. They will provide a short overview of national and European research funding for current and potential group leaders. This event is geared towards Goethe University’s postdoctoral researchers of all disciplines hoping to start or consolidate their own team and looking for funding for their independent research project.

Our InfoChat works like an informal group conversation, which leaves room for all of your questions. After an introductory presentation, we will talk about your personal navigation within the funding lines that are available to researchers in Germany. In a plenum with the other participants, you will have two hours to ask your questions about the DFG Emmy Noether and Heisenberg Programmes, the Starting and Consolidator Grants of the European Research Council (ERC), and other potential funding opportunities for junior research groups.

You will benefit from our expertise at the RSC as well as from the questions and experiences of all other participants. You will have the opportunity to network with each other, and you will get to know the RSC service staff who will support you throughout the application process.

You don't have two hours? Feel free to join us anytime or leave early! In order to give you the flexibility to attend according to your individual schedule, you can make use of this event’s open door policy. It’s strongly recommended that you attend the introductory presentations at the beginning of the InfoChat.
