

Dear colleagues,

Goethe University Frankfurt has an interesting offer for dedicated students: The Goethe Goes Global Master Scholarships – now open for 75 master's programmes!

Who is eligible to apply?

Students who hold or are on track for an excellent Bachelor's degree (or equivalent) from a university outside Germany. A strong motivation for research is also required as the students are encouraged to join activities in distinguished research units on campus and pursue a PhD in the long run.

Goethe University will provide scholarship holders with:

- A monthly scholarship amount of 1,000 € for the standard period of a master's programme at Goethe-University (generally 2 years)
- Support and orientation from an experienced master's student buddy during your studies
- Access to seminars focusing on professional skills at our Graduate Academy (GRADE), normally open only to PhD students and postdocs
- Access to an innovative research environment and networks connecting the scholarship holders and other advanced researchers
- Career support through Goethe University's Research Support Office

It is possible to select a research unit in the application and if the research unit is nominating the candidate, he/she will receive:

- The option of having excellent academic supervision by professors and academic staff who, in most cases, work in the distinguished research units at the university
- The option to write the master's thesis and other seminar papers or do an internship in an appropriate research unit at the university
- Insight and involvement in the activities of multidisciplinary research groups at Goethe University

Goethe University's master scholarship programme is a ground-breaking project and unique in the academic landscape of Germany. From 2016-2020 there are 20 scholarships per year available for all consecutive master's programmes and addressed to excellent students interested in research.
